

The technology and techniques developed in high energy physics, to understand the basic building blocks of the universe, has an immediate applications to the benefit of society as well. In this class, we will discuss some of these applications as follows:

1. Applications of accelerators in medical diagnosis & therapy, national security, food safety, etc.
2. Applications of detectors and instrumentations in Medical imaging, tomography, etc.